Town council considers building new skateboard parks

BY BRIAN LOCKHART

New Tecumseth Council received a report from the Recreation, Facilities, and Culture Department during its July 13 meeting regarding the feasibility and potential timeline of developing new skateboard parks. The report cites the Open Spaces Master Plan and recommends demolishing the bike and skateboard parks in Alliston and Tottenham and rebuilding them in the same communities. The All Wheels Skate Park project fund has a remaining balance of $38,043 following last year's pump track purchase.

The All Wheels Skate Park concept has been under consideration since 2019, when the Nottawasaga OPP developed the All-Wheels Park Strategy in consultation with local youth, New Line Skateparks Inc., and New Tecumseth staff.

The strategy identified Riverdale Park in Alliston as the proposed location, with an estimated project cost of $928,000, including a five per cent contingency. In 2020, Council allocated $169,000 toward the project, with the expectation that additional funding would be secured through community contributions and support from external partners.

To date, no contributions have been received from outside sources.

The estimated cost for a new, modern bike and skateboard park is between $940,000 and $1.1 million.

On May 12, 2025, Council approved a motion for the acquisition of a mobile pump track. As part of that decision, staff was directed to draw from the previously reserved skate park funds and report back on the feasibility of developing a permanent All Wheels-style facility. There are currently five skateboard and bike parks (excluding New Tecumseth) within about 20 kms of Alliston, Tottenham, and Beeton. These parks are located in Angus, Schomberg, Nobleton, Bolton, and Bradford West Gwillimbury and provide alternative access. A study indicates that when youth choose physical activity, it is typically for enjoyment and fitness, for example hiking or biking, rather than competition. Skateboarding and bike parks remain popular as they provide social, self-directed, and non-competitive physical activity suitable for a range of ages. The Town currently provides one bike and skateboard park in each Alliston, Beeton, and Tottenham. Alliston and Tottenham feature parks with large concrete pads and at least three elements for tricks. Beeton has a single pad with a single metal half-pipe. At the time the master plan was prepared, the Town's youth population was around 4,920. It is expected to grow to 7,483 by 2040. The Town's existing skateparks are aging and have experienced recurring vandalism. Both the Alliston and Tottenham parks are UNDER UTILIZED – New Tecumseth Town Council has received a report about local skateboard and bike parks. The report says the parks are in poor shape and their replacement should be considered. The Tottenham park at the Tottenham Community and Fitness Centre has minimal facilities and currently gets little use.

in poor condition and do not get a lot of use, likely for that reason. The Beeton park is underused and offers limited play value. The report recommends decommissioning both the Alliston and Tottenham parks and reviewing the locations. The report states that the Beeton park be considered for new equipment and create a new space more inclusive to teenage girls. Several locations for new parks are being considered.

MAKING PROGRESS – New Tecumseth Fire Station #4 is nearing completion as crews continue to build the new facility located on the 14th Line. The 12,600 sq. ft. fire hall will meet the need for expanded fire and rescue service as the town grows. The new fire station is expected to be operational in fall 2026.

adopt a cat

My name is Jax! I am only 10 months old, and am a total love bug. I always make sure the volunteers know I'm around for pets. I also love playing with the toys, particularly balls and springs! I was living on a farm where I was going to be abandoned. Now I can not wait for my own family.

I am neutered, microchipped, dewormed, vaccinated and flea treated.

Adoption price: $275

Check our facebook page to see the other kitties looking for their forever home. Donations always needed to help care for the cats as we are not funded at all, and rely on donations and fundraisers. If you would like to volunteer as well we are always appreciative.

Jackie Curd retires after 32 years at The Clothes Line thrift store

BY BRIAN LOCKHART

After 32 years of hard work and dedication, Jackie Curd has retired from her position as store manager at The Clothes Line on Victoria Street in Alliston.

The Clothes Line supports CONTACT Community Services.

A well-known person in the community, a large group of CONTACT employees and volunteers turned out to wish Jackie a happy retirement at a party held at the Topsy Fox in Alliston on July 22.

Jackie started out with CONTACT with a one-year contract.

"I was at the Alliston Learning Centre to get my Grade 12, and I did my co-op placement at The Clothes Line," Jackie explained of the start of her career. "Near the end of my placement, there was a one-year grant offer. You had to have certain qualifications, which I met. I got the job for a year with the provision if we could increase things to cover our wage, I would be brought on full time."

CONTACT started out as a single telephone helpline in its early days almost 50 years ago.

"It has been a privilege to work there," Jackie said. "The people I've met, the customers I've met, the volunteers and staff and management staff I've worked with – I'm a lucky person. I get up every morning and look forward to going to work."

The Clothes Line is a retail thrift store that was first opened in 1978 to help the telephone line that was operated by CONTACT. A percentage of the money raised at The Clothes Line is given to people who are struggling or have experienced some type of disaster such as a fire.

"Jackie has been at the store for 32 years," explained Brenda Pufek, manager of Community Engagement and Development at CONTACT. "For a volunteer coming into the location, Jackie is very inclusive, and very understanding and compassionate. She's almost built a community into itself there at the store. It's a great experience for volunteers. Jackie is very reliable and will go above and beyond for anyone in the organization."

Moving into retirement, Jackie said she has no immediate plans, but hopes to take a few months to figure it all out in a new lifestyle.

"I'll probably take off around six months," Jackie said. "We're trying to sell our home in Melancthon and we'll probably move to the St. Catharines area where winters aren't quite as long. But we'll always come back."

Many well-wishers arrived for her retirement party and several people gave short speeches praising Jackie for her work over the years and thanking her for being such a good person to work with.

NEW CHAPTER – After 32 years at The Clothes Line in Alliston, Jackie Curd is retiring. Known as a dedicated, reliable, and compassionate store manager, many well-wishers turned out for a retirement party at the Topsy Fox in Alliston on July 22. Jackie cuts the cake at the party.

NEWS, EVENTS & INFORMATION

14th Line and C.W. Leach Road New Tecumseth Municipal Class Environmental Assessment Notice of Public Information Centre No. 2

The Study: The Town of New Tecumseth is undertaking a Municipal Class Environmental Assessment study (MCEA) to evaluate options for improvements to 14th Line from Industrial Parkway / County Road 10 to Sideroad 10, including the Mayberry Bridge (Bridge No. 12001), and improvements to the C.W. Leach Road corridor from 14th Line to Highway 89. Additionally, intersection improvements will be considered for 14th Line / Side Road 10 West and 14th Line Industrial Parkway / County Road 10. Options for improvements will consider road widening to address anticipated increases in traffic volume, bridge conditions, and potential operational issues.

The Process: The Study will follow Schedule C of the Municipal Class Environmental Assessment process (Municipal Engineers Association, 2024), which is an approved process under the Ontario Environmental Assessment Act. The study will evaluate and recommend solutions in consultation with the public, Indigenous Nations, and agencies. At the conclusion of the Study, the process will be documented in an Environmental Study Report (ESR), prepared for public review.

Comments Invited: The Town would like to ensure that anyone interested in this Study has the opportunity to provide input into the planning and design of the project. The second Virtual Public Information Centre (PIC) will be available on the project webpage to update the public on project activities, identify the preferred design solution, present the preliminary design solution, and gather public comments. The virtual PIC is available online at newtecumseth.ca/14thLineEA starting July 31, 2026. Your comments on the PIC project information materials are encouraged by August 31, 2026. Following the PIC, and in consideration of comments received, the preferred the preferred design option will be identified. Please contact either of the following Project Team members if you are unable to access the online information for this Study or if you would like to be added to the mailing list to receive future project notices.

Perseverance

There are people who like to fly under the radar and not really accomplish a whole lot in life.

Others take a different approach and strive for something bigger, stronger, faster, and more exciting.

Perseverance is a key factor in most of the great discoveries, inventions, and expansion of knowledge and the earth itself.

If the early explorers had not persevered through hardship and dangerous situations, the New World would have remained undiscovered, Marco Polo would not have made the connection to the East, and Neil Armstrong and Buzz Aldrin would have never set foot on the moon.

In February of 1958, a British oil survey crew was flying over an uncharted area of the Sahara Desert and spotted a military aircraft in the middle of the desert – hundreds of miles from the nearest airbase. It had American military emblems on its wings.

They reported their sighting to authorities.

In May of 1959, a recovery team made a trip to the site.

They found the aircraft in remarkably good shape considering it had been baking in the desert sun for 15 years. The aircraft's radio still worked, and so did its machine guns.

No human remains were found.

The aircraft was identified as a missing plane from the Second World War.

The craft was a B-24D Liberator bomber named Lady Be Good.

Records showed that Lady Be Good disappeared during a nighttime bombing mission on Naples, Italy.

When the aircraft failed to return to its North African air base, it was assumed the plane had crashed into the Mediterranean Sea and the crew was later listed as killed in action.

It was a mystery as to how this aircraft wound up in the middle of the desert, fairly intact with no crew on board.

A subsequent investigation, including a journal written by one of the crew explained what happened.

Lady Be Good left its airbase in Libya on April 4, 1943, for what would be her first and last mission, with nine crew members.

An airbase in the desert provided a lot of problems for air crews – most notably sand that interfered with the engines.

Lady Be Good never completed its bombing mission. After developing engine problems, the crew aborted the mission, turned the bomber around and jettisoned their bombs over the sea.

They were in total darkness over water and desert with no visible lights below. The last transmission from Lady Be Good was a report that their automatic direction finder was no longer working.

The crew was lost.

When it was apparent the craft was about to run out of fuel, the commander ordered everyone to bail out. Thinking they were still over water, the crew was surprised to find themselves landing on sand.

They managed to group together by using pistol shots and signal flares.

Of the nine crew, eight survived. One man died because his parachute failed to open.

The crew had no idea of their actual position – they were 400 miles inland.

They made the decision to start walking north, in the direction of their airfield.

Ironically, if they had decided to walk south, there was a reasonable chance they may have found their aircraft which landed on its own 16 miles south. The aircraft still contained provisions and they could have used the radio to call for help.

The crew was in a desperate situation. They were in the middle of the desert in scorching heat with little water.

They persevered.

The eight men started walking. They walked for almost 80 miles in desert conditions for eight days.

The one crewman wrote it all down in his journal which was located with his body.

By the eighth day, most of the men were done. Five of the eight were found grouped together where they died.

The other three men persevered. They found the body of the sixth man, 20 miles further north.

They then discovered the seventh man still another 27 miles north.

At the time, they could not locate the body of the eighth man.

However, a couple of years later, another survey group stumbled upon a mummified body, well over 100 miles north of the main group's location. At the time, they surmised the body was that of a Bedouin sheep herder who had gotten lost.

They buried the body in an unmarked grave in the sand.

After this was reported, some investigators believe this was actually the body of the eighth man who incredibly, managed to walk 150 miles in the desert before succumbing.

Imagine being that man. All he could see was sky and sand, his companions were all dead, he knew his fate was sealed, and yet he kept walking.

He failed, but that was perseverance.

FROM THE SECOND ROW

The lost art of discourse

What do you do in your day-to-day life when you're having a conversation with someone and then, unexpectedly, the chat takes a weird turn and you find yourself vehemently disagreeing with the views they are presenting?

Do you take it all in your stride, smiling with some degree of benevolence, waiting for them to wind up whatever clatrappy monologue they've committed to, before deftly steering the direction into calmer, hopefully more pleasant waters?

Do you bring out the facts and figures to bolster your side, or do you just glare at the person hoping they get the message? Maybe you just get up from the table and walk away thinking, "Not today!" or simply just brush it aside, knowing that this is the person you've engaged with, know where they stand, and just let it wash over you like water off a duck's back?

There's no real wrong answer in this scenario, unless, perhaps, throwing your drink in the other person's face or dramatically flipping over the table as you exit the coffee shop.

But these are all in-person scenarios; all bets seem to be off if the only thing separating you from your conversation partner is a screen.

If you've ever made the mistake of wandering into an online comments section, whatever the platform, it's clear that the screen in-between can sometimes make people behave in ways that would be unthinkable in person.

This isn't a new phenomenon when it comes to political posts – the temperature in this particular kitchen has been way too high for far too long – but it's becoming pervasive in almost every realm of online discussion these days.

In recent months, I've seen debates rage over the most unlikely things.

An acquaintance recently posted that he and his wife went out on what they hoped would be a romantic date night. They hadn't had one in a while and were excited to try out a new place—only to have their experience mired by a couple of kids running wild through the place as their oblivious parents enjoyed their meal.

Granted, only one perspective of this scene was offered and there might have been a few exaggerations here and there, but their post struck a chord with the masses and people piled in the comments, acting like they'd seen the whole thing.

Comments ranged from sympathy with their experience to a nod in the direction of the other parents who might have been wanting to get a night out themselves, and perhaps couldn't find a babysitter.

That last comment was fair enough, but it quickly devolved into criticisms of the original poster for lacking empathy for the other parents, that they were commenting from a "place of privilege," as it was assumed this childless couple were lucky enough to secure a sitter, and others reacting as if they tripped one of the kids as they whizzed by the table out of nothing but sport and spite.

Outside of people I know, we only need to look as far as the online "debate" regarding the accuracy of Christopher Nolan's new record-busting film adaptation of The Odyssey, which opened in theatres a couple of weeks ago to widespread acclaim.

Widespread, yes, but certainly not universal as people have chimed in about everything from its historical accuracy to the casting of Oscar-winning actress Lupita Nyong'o as Helen of Troy and Oscar-nominee Elliott Page as Sinon.

War-Weary

GWYNNE DYER
OUR WORLD TODAY

I have been writing this column for a long time, so I have a finely developed sense for when the audience is sick of a subject. We have definitely crossed that boundary with regard to the wars currently being fought up and down the strip of land between the longitudes of 40°E and 50°E (Eastern Ukraine/Persian Gulf/Israel, Gaza and Lebanon).

It's not just that they are stupid wars, launched by men who were too ignorant or too arrogant to realize that they could not win them (Vladimir Putin, Donald Trump, Binyamin Netanyahu), and it's certainly not because they are harmless wars.

Not only are they killing thousands of people every week, but in every case the country that started the war also has nuclear weapons. In each case there is a small but real possibility that the leader in question might resort to using at least one 'tactical' nuclear weapon as a final warning rather than accept the blame for a humiliating failure to achieve his aims.

Yet nothing much that is new and interesting is happening from one day to the next in any of these wars, and the audience would really like to move on. I have been trying to write about something else at least once a week, so I thought: maybe I could do a piece about Kim Jong Un's teenage daughter's chance of being North Korea's next dictator.

Just fluff, really, but it's better than producing nothing to fill that space.

So I go online to update my limited knowledge of North Korean politics. Surprise! The last time most of them paid much attention to North Korea was in 2017-18, when Donald Trump decided that he would save the world from the threat of North Korean nuclear weapons.

As they used to say about the Roman empire: All Roads Lead to Donald Trump. But it was quite instructive, because it shows just how limited Trump's repertoire of negotiating tactics really is. What can his first-term attempt to stop North Korea from getting nuclear weapons tell us about the likely outcome of his current attempt to bring Iran to heel? Everything.

When he took power in early 2017 Trump seemed obsessed by the 'threat' of North Korean nuclear weapons. He made it the No.1 issue on his foreign policy agenda. He said that North Korean nuclear weapons "will be met with fire and fury like the world has never seen." He promised to "totally destroy the country", and called Kim Jong Un "Little Rocket Man."

All the invective we're now hearing again, almost word for word, but then the big switch. "I trust him," Trump burred when the two men finally met in Singapore in 2018. "He has a great personality. We fell in love through letters." They met once more on the line dividing North Korea from South Korea (the 'DMZ') in 2019, and that was it.

No treaty, no further discussions, nothing. Within a year Trump had totally lost interest. Meanwhile North Korea's arsenal of nuclear weapons has grown to 60 warheads, according to a new estimate by the Stockholm International Peace Research Institute, and Pyongyang has recently tested an ICBM that can reach anywhere in the United States.

Will Trump pull the same vanishing act with Iran? Well, he already has with regard to the nuclear weapons issue, which was kicked a very long way down the road in the 'Memorandum of Understanding' he signed last month. That doesn't matter much, because Iran never had any nukes and wasn't even trying very hard to get them.

The current round of fighting is just about who controls the Strait of Hormuz, a huge and previously unexploited strategic asset that Trump's attack brought to the attention of the Iranian regime. With the price of oil going back up and the mid-term election looming near, Trump is quite likely to chicken out again.

So now we can get back to the real question: what will become of sweet little Kim Ju Ae, the 13-year-old daughter of North Korean dictator Kim Jong Un? She is definitely a hit with the masses, even though speculation that she might be his secretly chosen successor is severely discouraged.

While other potential heirs in the three generations of Kims have mostly been kept out of the public eye until the moment they are placed on the dynasty's (invisible) throne, Ju Ae came out four years ago for the launch of an intercontinental ballistic missile. She has been at Kim Jong Un's side on dozens of public events since then.

However, her father is only in his 40s and looks fine apart from the world's worst haircut, so she may have to wait for some time.

Mental health advocacy is “love letter” to family, says new head of CMHA-YRSS

BY BROCK WEIR

As a caregiver to a parent with persistent mental illness, Andrew Chung knows all too well the challenges that come in finding appropriate resources in the community.

They are lived experiences that have fuelled his career as an advocate for mental health and they continue to drive him as he takes over the Canadian Mental Health Association of York Region and South Simcoe (CMHA-YRSS) as its new Chief Executive Officer.

Chung, whose appointment as CEO was announced by CMHA-YRSS last week, succeeds Rebecca Shields as head of the Aurora-based organization and he comes to the table with more than 20 years of leadership experience in the healthcare and community service sectors.

Previously President and CEO of HF Care (formerly Hong Fook Mental Health Association) where he was instrumental in making the non-profit a leader in culturally-responsive mental health care, Chung was hailed as a “collaborative and visionary leader” by Rob Bull, Chair of the CMHA-YRSS’ Board of Directors.

“Throughout the search process, we were looking for someone who could build on our organization’s strong foundation while helping shape the future of community mental health,” said Bull. “Andrew’s commitment to innovation, partnership, and equity make him the right leader for the next chapter.”

The next chapter for the CMHA-YRSS promises to be a significant one as they face unprecedented demand for community mental health services while developing the future York Region Mental Health Community Centre in Newmarket.

“My commitment to going into social services, non-profits, and mental health care is really a love letter to my family and really in the hopes that I can be a part of changing the way we provide care in a way that reduces stigma and ways that we can actually provide real care that families...deserve, and that extends to everything from primary care to getting help to do your day to day living,” says Chung, the son of Korean immigrants, who found there was “no real culturally-competent responsive care” for diverse populations when his family embarked on their difficult journey.

“That’s why mental health care is really important to me.”

The CMHA-YRSS has been a close partner with HF Care and the two organizations collaborated on the creation of programs addressing care in diverse populations. When the opportunity came to join the CMHA-YRSS, Chung says he saw a clear chance to make a difference at the community level.

“It’s further proof the CMHA can really keep people healthy in their communities and at home, which is what we want,” says Chung of being able to steer The Centre to completion. “We don’t want people to go to the hospital if they don’t need to because every emergency department visit can be incredibly traumatic and costly in many ways. Because the CMHA is large in its size, scope, and scale, it’s not just about delivering services, but there’s a real opportunity to be a leader in systems change and also in connecting our community members who may not be as familiar about what is really going on with mental health care.”

Given the scale of the CMHA in York Region and South Simcoe, Chung says he’s still “getting to know all the nuances” of their expansive programs and services, but sees opportunities at the community level to address some of the underlying factors that can impact or exacerbate mental health challenges. He’s a firm believer in the adage, “the character of a community is defined by how it takes care of the most vulnerable” and says it’s a guiding principle he will host close as the health care system goes through “some pretty big changes.”

“We know how costly it can be with emergency department visits; we have an aging population, it’s becoming more diverse, and it’s an increasingly complex world,” he says. “Post-COVID, we’ve gone from a place of scarcity to precarity. How we address people’s concerns certainly needs to change a little bit. The determinants of health that are becoming very real and highlighted, things like why housing is so fundamental to good mental health, why income security is so fundamental to good mental health – I think that in the age of precarity it can deepen a wedge of us and them, but I actually think the success story is about how we all do it together, like housing for all, income security for all, and how that is directly related to our own mental health, how we care for those with persistent mental illness and addictions... I feel like this can be a really defining time for the communities that CMHA is in to really hold that to a standard on how are we going to reflect the character of our community and how do we take care of the most vulnerable?”

“I would love to see for those who are providing housing, we’re seeing this more as a partnership to recognize... the separation that we created between physical care and mental health care, and housing and food security as examples, they’re all artificial separations that we’ve done to try and address a problem in more digestible ways, but no longer really serving us.... Housing is super touchy because notionally I believe that folks want everybody housed but it’s in the how and where and the trust in organizations that we can deliver on that commitment without causing things like stress or distress to other folks. I get that that’s a real reality but it’s a fine balance and so I think that the external factors around creating empathy and also inviting external folks in to help us develop a strategy that allows everyone to win.”

Chung holds a Master of Business Administration and a Master of Science in Healthcare Policy and Research from Cornell University, where he was recognized as the 2023 Dr. Lorna Breen Mental Health Fellow. He also holds a Bachelor of Arts in Public Administration from Toronto Metropolitan University.

Summer revellers are reminded to be wary of West Nile Virus

BY BRIAN LOCKHART

It's summer and a lot of people are spending time in the great outdoors near lakes and hiking along forest trails.

The Simcoe Muskoka District Health Unit is urging residents to take precautions and avoid getting West Nile Virus.

West Nile Virus is a mosquito-borne virus spread to people by the bite of an infected mosquito. Mosquitoes become infected with the virus after they bit an infected bird.

The virus can cause illness, and in rare cases, meningitis, encephalitis (inflammation of the brain), and acute flaccid paralysis (loss of muscle function).

Many people infected with the virus will have mild or no symptoms.

Although West Nile Virus is one of the most common mosquito-borne illnesses in Canada, the risk of illness is relatively low provincially and locally.

It can be transmitted by the bite of an infected mosquito at any time with the greatest risk during summer and early fall.

Mosquitoes are mostly active at dawn and dusk and the risk of being bitten is greatest at those times of day.

Most people who are bitten by an infected mosquito do not develop symptoms. Those who do become ill usually experience mild symptoms such as fever, headaches, body aches, rash, nausea, or vomiting.

These flu-like symptoms often develop around three to 14 days after a bite from an infected mosquito and may last for several days.

In extremely rare cases, the virus can cause severe illness involving the central nervous system.

There is no vaccine or antiviral treatment available for West Nile Virus.

The best prevention against West Nile Virus is taking steps to prevent mosquito bites.

When you are in areas that may have mosquitoes, wear light-coloured clothing as mosquitoes are attracted to dark colours. Cover exposed skin.

Use insect repellent according to the manufacturer's directions.

You can reduce mosquito breeding sites

PRECAUTION – Summer outdoor activity comes with the risk of contracting West Nile Virus through mosquito bites. You can take a preventative approach to avoid being bitten.

near your home if you live in a rural area.

A mosquito breeding site is any container or area that contains stagnant water.

By preventing and removing breeding sites on your property, your risk of being bitten by a mosquito is reduced.

Sixty-three individuals charged in OPP sexual abuse and exploitation investigation

BY BRIAN LOCKHART

Through the Provincial Strategy to Protect Children from Sexual Abuse and Exploitation on the Internet, a joint initiative involving the Ontario Provincial Police and 25 other police services resulted in 63 individuals being charged and 51 victims identified.

As part of Project Time, a coordinated provincial effort to identify and apprehend those who prey on children, investigators targeted individuals making, possessing, and distributing child sexual abuse material.

Victims were also identified and safeguarded with appropriate support provided to those impacted.

Project Time results include:

- 51 victims identified
- 63 individuals arrested
- 213 charges laid
- 814 electronic devices seized
- 264 criminal investigations conducted
- 154 ongoing investigations
- Two accused were in a position of trust and authority in their communities

- Eight accused were repeat offenders.

Persons charged were from a large number of cities and towns across the province, including a 28-year-old man from Everett.

The charges have not been proven.

Members of the Provincial Internet Child Exploitation Strategy recognize that law enforcement cannot combat these crimes alone. Parents, educators, child advocacy organizations, government and technology providers are essential in

“Project Time is a testament to the dedication and commitment of law enforcement professionals across Ontario and Canada to protect children from exploitation,” said OPP Detective Staff Sergeant Tara Clark, Provincial Internet Child Exploitation Strategy Lead. “The results of this operation demonstrate the power of collaboration, the strength of the Provincial Internet Child Exploitation Strategy and the relentless pursuit of those who prey on the most vulnerable.”

Jade’s Craftable Creations creates beautiful flowers from pipe cleaners

BY BRIAN LOCKHART

Pipe cleaners used to be a tool for cleaning a pipe.

Someone discovered that due to their bendable shape and furry liner, they were also useful for making arts and crafts.

Jade Bryan of Jades Craftable Creations has taken pipe cleaner crafting to a whole new level and creates beautiful decorative flowers, and other small decorative items.

Modern pipe cleaners are called “fuzzy wires” and are specifically designed for the crafter market with different colours and a lot more furry lining.

Jade brought her flowers to the Tottenham Vendor’s Market on July 26, and visitors were delighted by her colourful creations.

She started making the flowers almost on a whim after she saw a video that inspired her.

“I create flowers and hair accessories and other nature themed out of pipe cleaners, or as some people call them, fuzzy wire,” Jade explained. “I was scrolling on my phone and saw a video, and made some of the flowers for my friends, and it kind of spiralled from there.”

Jade started creating her own designs and adding personal touches to the flowers she made.

“I have around 12 different flowers, flower crowns, and mushrooms which are brand new,” Jade explained. “I also have hair clips. I’ve sold at several different markets in the region.”

For smaller flowers ideal for household display, Jade uses special floral stems. She also uses tiny LED lights in some of her creations that give them a real sparkle.

Jade is a nurse by profession and is planning to go back to school at Georgian Col-

NDBL senior division wraps up regular season, ready for playoffs

BY BRIAN LOCKHART

The Owen Sound Baysox finished in first place in the senior division of the North Dufferin Baseball League after taking over the top spot last week.

The Baysox were on a nine-game winning streak before taking a loss to the Ivy Rangers on July 15.

They have since won three in a row and now have a 17-5 record.

Owen Sound knocked the New Lowell Knights down a notch in the standings. The Knights had been leading since the start of the season.

New Lowell is having a strong showing this season and currently has a 15-4-2 record. With 32 points, they are just two points behind Owen Sound.

In the number three spot, the Ivy Rangers are doing well with a 15-6-1 record and 31 points.

The Orillia Majors are tied for third place with a 15-6-1 record and 31 points.

In fourth place, the Barrie Angels have won 13 games after 22 times on the diamond.

With the regular season now complete, the senior division will go into the playoffs with the top eight teams making the cut.

The Owen Sound Baysox will be up against the Midland Mariners in the first round.

The second-place New Lowell Knights will meet the Caledon Cardinals.

The Ivy Rangers will face the Bolton Brewers.

The Orillia Majors will be up against the Barrie Angels in their first round match-up.

Teams that failed to make the playoffs this year include the Lisle Astros, Creemore Padres, Clarksburg Blues, and the Mansfield Cubs.

A schedule for the playoffs has not yet been announced.

SAFE SLIDE – The TNT Thunder U12 A team takes on the Collingwood Jays at Coventry Park in Tottenham on July 21. Base runner Jace Hatfield slides safely into home plate to score during the first inning. The Thunder won this game 7-6 and are in first place with a 10-1 record.

Brock's Banter: The lost art of discourse

The "discourse" surrounding the film – and I use quotes here because I simply can't believe it's actual discourse – has been truly bonkers.

People apparently are content to rip each other to shreds online about the accuracy of different plot points in Homer's epic poem and how it has been translated to screen. How historically accurate they think a work involving a cyclops, men being turned into swine, and the wrath of mythical gods, can be is a matter of debate – but, at this point, I don't think it's a debate worth having, at least to the level of heat it's being exposed to.

As for the feigned outrage at two acclaimed actors playing two minor, fictional roles in the three-hour epic – well, I can only imagine these were the same people who were spitting venom at Cynthia Erivo's casting as Elphaba in the two Wicked pictures – apparently outraged that the director had the audacity to cast a Black woman to play a Green woman...

thus depriving all the real Green actresses out there a chance to finally grasp a rung on the Hollywood ladder?

There's really only one reason for the outrage, however ridiculous, but we'll leave it at that for now.

Nearly every time I venture into the comments, I'm met with instant regret, and not a small amount of nostalgia.

Growing up, my personal interests and hobbies didn't necessarily lend themselves to friend-making. That's not to say I received a lot of flack for preferring black-and-white sitcoms to cartoons and NBC's Thursday Night Comedy Lineup, to pick just one example, but it didn't make for a lot of common ground as far as conversation was concerned.

The first time I ever logged onto what was still dubbed the "information superhighway," I felt I had finally found my people, entered into easy, respectful conversations, and forged true friendships that have lasted almost 30 years now.

I sure count myself as lucky because I don't think building those bonds through a screen is necessarily conducive in the online climate we now find ourselves in, where more and more people confuse their opinion with fact, seek validation of their views rather than the truth, and consider meeting any debate with vehemence less than your conversation partner as complacency with their views.

Maybe the proverbial genie is too far out of the bottle at this point, but couldn't we at least attempt to carry on an online discussion in the same respect we would expect with face-to-face discourse?

Call me old fashioned, but these tips from 1875's A Gentleman's Guide to Etiquette, as presented in a blog by The Art of Manliness (a title which undoubtedly spurred its own heated debate at some point) are pretty darn refreshing:

"Even if convinced that your opponent is utterly wrong, yield gracefully, decline further discussion, or dextrously turn the conversation, but do not obstinately defend your own opinion until you become angry... Many there are who, giving their opinion, not as opinion, but as a law, will defend their position by such phrases as, "Well, if I were president or governor, I would," – and while by the warmth of their argument they prove that they are utterly unable to govern their own temper, they will endeavour to persuade you that they are perfectly competent to take charge of the government of the nation.

"Retain, if you will, a fixed political opinion, yet do not parade it upon all occasions, and, above all, do not endeavour to force others to agree with you. Listen calmly to their ideas upon the same subjects, and if you cannot agree, differ politely, and while your opponent may set you down as a bad politician, let him be obliged to admit that you are a gentleman?"

What do you say, ladies and gentlemen?

Fire danger rating remains moderate for New Tecumseth, while other municipalities remain high

BY BRIAN LOCKHART

There are currently no burning restrictions in place in the region.

During a summer that has seen one hot period but otherwise has experienced moderate summer temperatures, the Fire Danger Rating for New Tecumseth is currently Moderate.

Of the 20 municipalities listed for Simcoe County, only four have Fire Danger Ratings of High.

Those municipalities include Collingwood, Innisfil, Springwater, and Wasaga Beach.

In cottage country, the Muskoka region also has a current rating of High.

Residents are encouraged to be aware of the local Fire Danger Rating as it may change during the summer season.

Fire Danger Ratings and burning bans are issued at the discretion of local Fire Services.

If a fire rating is listed as High, there may be a burn ban put in place.

A burn ban may include all fires including those where permits have been issued.

If you do have an outdoor fire, it must be tended to at all times. A bucket of water or extinguishing system must be nearby.

Make sure all fires are extinguished fully before you leave a fire.

Be aware of current Fire Danger Ratings in your area and follow any orders that have been issued regarding outdoor fires.

OPP lay charges after indecent act in grocery store in Alliston

BY BRIAN LOCKHART

The Nottawasaga Detachment of the Ontario Provincial Police arrested an individual following a report of an indecent act in a grocery store.

At about 4:30 p.m. on June 29, officers responded to a grocery store in Alliston after receiving a report that an individual had followed another shopper through the store and had taken an indecent photograph of them.

The victim was not known to the accused. As a result of the investigation, Brady O'Neill, 30, from Petawawa, was arrested and charged with voyeurism and criminal harassment under the Criminal Code.

The accused was released and is scheduled to appear before the Ontario Court of Justice in Bradford to answer to the charges.

The charges have not been proven.

Investigators believe there may be additional victims and are urging anyone who had a similar experience to come forward.

Nottawasaga OPP lay numerous charges for drug trafficking and fraud

BY BRIAN LOCKHART

Members of the Nottawasaga Detachment of the Ontario Provincial Police with assistance from Nottawasaga Community Street Crime Unit have concluded a drug trafficking investigation that began the spring of 2026.

Officers conducted a traffic stop on July 10 in Alliston involving a vehicle that had been rented using a fraudulent driver's license. Three people were arrested as a result of that traffic stop.

During the arrests, one person was found to be in possession of a prohibited weapon identified as a switchblade knife.

A fourth person connected to the investigation was subsequently arrested and charged.

As a result of the searches, officers seized 21 grams of cocaine, 2.8 grams of fentanyl, 1.5 grams of methamphetamine, 36 milligrams of hydromorphone (Dilaudid) in pills, drug trafficking paraphernalia, stolen mail, multiple fraudulent identification cards, stolen/fraudulent credit cards.

As a result of the investigation, a 24-year-old individual from Toronto has been charged with seven offences, including trafficking and possession of property obtained by crime.

A 44-year-old individual from New Tecumseth has been charged with eight offences, including trafficking and probation violations.

A 37-year-old individual from New Tecumseth has been charged with eight offences including trafficking.

A 28-year-old individual from Toronto has been charged with seven offences, including use of a forged document and probation violations.

The charges have not been proven.

One accused was held for a bail hearing while the remaining three accused were released from custody and are scheduled to appear before the Ontario Court of Justice in Bradford at a future date.

Nearly 1.7 tonnes of illegal drugs seized in one of the largest drug busts by weight in Ontario

A multi-jurisdictional, cross-border investigation resulted in the seizure of nearly 1.7 tonnes of illegal drugs, including suspected cocaine, methamphetamine and opium marking one of the most significant drug seizures in a single investigation in Ontario. This intelligence-led joint forces investigation, named Project Bay, focused on disrupting the importation and trafficking of illegal drugs with a nexus to the international border.

In January 2025, the Windsor Police Service (WPS) initiated a drug-trafficking investigation. In February 2025, the Canada Border Services Agency (CBSA) collaborated with WPS to advance the investigation and identify the cross-border trafficking network. As the scope and complexity of the investigation expanded, the Ontario Provincial Police (OPP) was engaged to support the cross-border and interprovincial components of the investigation through the Border Enforcement Security Task Force (BEST) and the OPP-led Border Drug Interdiction Task Force (BDIT).

As the investigation progressed, law enforcement partners provided critical support. US agencies, including Homeland Security Investigations (HSI) and the Drug Enforcement Administration, assisted with international aspects of the investigation, while the Toronto Police Service (TPS) and Peel Regional Police (PRP) provided operational and investigative support.

The investigation revealed the use of a broker-style model within the commercial transportation sector. It leveraged established connections to facilitate the cross-border movement of illegal drugs, including the arrangement of drivers to knowingly transport illicit commodities within legitimate supply chains.

On Thursday, June 25, 2026, 18 search warrants were executed at residences and businesses in Windsor, Corunna, LaSalle, Brampton and Kleinburg.

On Tuesday, July 14, 2026, two search warrants were executed in Markham and Caledon.

On Monday, July 20, 2026, two search warrants were executed in Brampton.

The estimated street value of the drugs seized is more than $139 million, representing a significant disruption to the illegal drug supply chain in Ontario.

The OPP Provincial Asset Forfeiture Unit has been engaged to investigate any proceeds of crime offences and assist in the seizure of offence-related property.

Twenty-one individuals have been charged with 102 offences contrary to the Criminal Code and the Controlled Drugs and Substances Act. Nineteen of the accused were arrested and two remain outstanding.

Charges have not been proven.

ABLAZE – Firefighters from Everett and Alliston responded to a vehicle fire on Highway 89, west of Alliston on July 25 at about 5:30 p.m. No one was injured in the blaze. A trucker stopped when he saw the fire and brought his fire extinguisher to help put out the flames. However, it required the fire department put out the fire.

CELEBRATING THE 52nd ANNUAL ALLISTON POTATO FESTIVAL!

DIG INTO THE FUN AT THE 2026 ALLISTON POTATO FESTIVAL

Mark your calendars!
 The Alliston Potato Festival returns Friday, Aug. 7, through Sunday, Aug. 9, with three days of entertainment, activities and community events.
 Daily admission is $8 per person, while children 12 and under are admitted free throughout the weekend. The festival also accepts the Access 2 Card at the admission gates.
 Many shows, performances and family activities are included with admission.
 A limited number of Sunday All-Day Midway Passes are available in advance for $35 cash at Town Tees — a savings of $10. Midway passes do not include the $8 festival admission.

2026 Festival dates and hours:

- Friday, August – 7 5:00 pm to 12:30 am
- Saturday, August 8 – 9:30 am to 12:30 am
- Sunday, August 9– 9:30 am to 4:00 pm

For the complete schedule, turn to page 10 or visit AllistonPotatoFest.com for further festival information.

This special section is published by the New Tecumseth Times, your community newspaper covering Alliston, Beeton, Tottenham and surrounding areas.

Note the images seen throughout this special section were supplied by the Alliston Potato Fest committee unless otherwise indicated. They were taken at the 2025 festival.*

NEW ATTRACTIONS ADDED TO POTATO FESTIVAL FAVOURITES AT THE 2026 EDITION

There will be plenty to discover when the Alliston Potato Festival returns Aug. 7 to 9, with new shows, hands-on activities and returning favourites planned throughout the weekend.

The Tom Bishop Wild West Show rides into the fairgrounds Saturday with three performances featuring horsemanship, trick riding, trick roping and whip demonstrations.

Banting Memorial High School's Robotics Team 7200 is putting a festival spin on technology with a specially built potato-launching robot. Visitors can take the controls, aim for the target and test their operating skills.

On Sunday, the Recycled Teenagers Classic Car and Truck Show moves to the fairgrounds for the first time. The show will feature classic cars, vintage trucks, hot rods and restored vehicles from across the region.

Intricate Motifs Henna by Zehra will offer free henna art on Saturday and Sunday. Toon Goon also returns Saturday to create free caricature drawings for festival visitors.

Popular festival events are returning as well. Saturday includes Strutt Your Mutt and free activities in the Giant Tiger Kid Zone, while the annual Baby Show takes place Sunday.

Canadian Tire Alliston has donated a youth bicycle for a free draw on Sunday. Young people attending the festival that day can enter for a chance to win.

More additions are still being finalized. For further festival information, go to: AllistonPotatoFest.com

Midway returns with thrills, family rides, and sensory-friendly hour

Albion Amusements will return to the Alliston Potato Festival with midway rides for children, teenagers and adults. The midway will include family rides, such as the merry-go-round and Ferris wheel, as well as thrill rides.

Midway hours are:

- Friday, Aug. 7: Opens at 5 p.m.
- Saturday, Aug. 8: Opens at 11 a.m. Festival gates open at 9:30 a.m.
- Sunday, Aug. 9: Opens at 11 a.m.

A Sensory-Friendly Midway Hour will be offered on Sunday from 11 a.m. to noon. Music will be turned off to provide a quieter environment for visitors with sensory sensitivities. Ride lights will remain on where required for safe operation.

Everyone is welcome during the Sensory-Friendly Hour. Regular midway operations will begin at noon.

A limited number of Sunday All-Day Ride Wristbands are available in advance for $35 cash at Towne Tees. This is a $10 savings from the $45 festival price.

The wristband covers midway rides on Sunday but does not include the $8 fairgrounds admission. Children 12 and under are admitted to the fairgrounds free.

Information about the midway is available at: AlbionAmusements.com

A Tradition Rooted in Community

There is something truly special about the Alliston Potato Festival.

Each year, this cherished tradition brings our community together to celebrate everything that makes New Tecumseth such a remarkable place to call home. From the familiar sights and sounds of the parade, to live entertainment, family activities, local food, and the countless conversations shared between friends and neighbours, the Potato Festival is a celebration of community in its purest form.

For generations, residents and visitors have gathered in Alliston to enjoy this iconic summer tradition. What began as a celebration of our rich agricultural roots has grown into one of the most anticipated events of the year, showcasing not only the importance of agriculture to our community, but also the vibrant spirit, pride, and connection that define New Tecumseth. While our Town continues to grow and change, the community spirit, traditions, and neighbourly connections that have made the Alliston Potato Festival so special continue to thrive and bring us together year after year.

The Alliston Potato Festival would not be possible without the incredible dedication of the volunteer committee, community organizations, sponsors, local businesses, and the many volunteers who generously give their time and talents to make this event a success. Their commitment helps create unforgettable experiences and lasting memories for thousands of people each year.

On behalf of Council and the Town of New Tecumseth, I invite you to join us in celebrating another exciting festival weekend. Whether you are a longtime resident, returning visitor, or experiencing the festival for the very first time, I hope you take the opportunity to enjoy all that this beloved community tradition has to offer.

Thank you for being part of what makes the Alliston Potato Festival so special. Have a wonderful festival weekend!

CELEBRATING THE 52nd ANNUAL ALLISTON POTATO FESTIVAL!

NEW TECUMSETH ROTARY CLUB LOOKS FORWARD TO HOSTING THE ANNUAL POTATO PARADE

The New Tecumseth Rotary Club is gearing up for its annual Alliston Rotary Potato Festival Parade to kick off this year's festivities.

The parade will take place on Friday, Aug. 7, and make its way down Victoria Street.

This popular annual event draws thousands of local residents as well as many visitors from surrounding towns and beyond, who make it a tradition to find their spot on the parade route and see what's new in this year's parade.

"Up to 70 floats and vehicles from community organizations, local businesses, and services such as the fire department, the OPP and County of Simcoe Paramedics travel down Victoria Street to the delight of thousands of New Tecumseth residents and visitors from near and far," explained George Scott, chair of the Rotary Club's Community Service Committee.

"The parade kicks off the entire Potato Festival weekend. It starts at 7 p.m. on Friday, 7 Aug., at Banting Memorial High School, winding up about 8:30 [p.m.] at the Alliston Memorial Arena on Nelson Street via Ontario Street. That puts everyone in close proximity to the Fairgrounds on Albert Street, where the festival's entertainment stage and amusements allow the fun to continue all weekend," Scott added.

The Rotary Club's Freezer Full of Meat Fundraiser is also in progress with Therapy Heals Inc. as the beneficiary.

"As part of the Rotary Club of New Tecumseth's fundraising efforts, we are for the second year running a raffle for a Freezer Full of Meat," explained Scott Ridgway, president of the New Tecumseth Rotary Club.

The first- and second-place raffle winners take home a freezer full of meat.

"The more exciting part of this is it allows us to offer financial support to initiatives within the community; this year's recipient is Therapy Heals, an organization providing mental health services to the youth in our area," Ridgway noted.

"The other exciting event the Rotary Club is operating is a "Catch the Ace" progressive lottery, where over up to 52 weeks the jackpot grows in size as tickets are purchased each week for $5. There is a weekly prize, and when the "Ace of Spades" gets caught, someone will win the jackpot."

Ridgway continued, "With the success of this lottery licensed by the AGCO we hope to raise funds for the Stevenson Memorial Hospital Foundation, Matthews House Foundation and the Rotary Club Charitable Fund allowing us to help a number of other groups in our town. These three organizations are well known for delivering much-needed services and support to groups in our community."

The New Tecumseth Rotary Club is always looking for new members and volunteers. The more members they have, the more good they can do.

"New Tecumseth Rotary is also responsible for the Alliston Santa Claus Parade, scheduled for 21 November and, in association with the Beeton-Tottenham Business BIA, the Tottenham Santa Claus Parade on 28 November." Mr. Scott said, "These are projects we love to do and important ways we can give back to our community, especially for our youngest citizens."

More information about the Rotary Club of New Tecumseth, including meeting times, is available at: newtecrotary.ca

Potatoes meet technology with Banting Robotics Team 7200

What happens when Alliston's most famous crop meets some of the community's brightest young innovators? Visitors will find out on Saturday, Aug. 8, when Banting Memorial High School's Robotics Team 7200 brings a specially designed potato-launching robot to the Alliston Potato Festival.

Banting Memorial High School's Robotics Team 7200 will bring a potato-launching robot to the Alliston Potato Festival on Saturday, Aug. 8.

Visitors can operate the robot, line up the launcher and aim a potato at a target. Different sections of the target will be assigned point values, and scores will be recorded throughout the day. The participant with the highest score will win a prize.

The activity will also give visitors a close look at the design, fabrication and programming involved in building and operating a competition robot.

Banting Robotics is a FIRST Robotics Competition team established at Banting Memorial High School in 2018. The team has competed at events across Ontario and received international recognition for Goalia, its robotic hockey goalie. Goalia was selected for presentation at HANNOVER MESSE, an international technology trade show in Germany.

Team members will also offer hands-on activities in the Kid Zone. Younger visitors can build with LEGO components, explore simple machines and learn some of the basic principles behind robotics.

Festival visitors can meet members of Team 7200 and try the potato-launching challenge throughout the day on Saturday.

CELEBRATING THE 52nd ANNUAL ALLISTON POTATO FESTIVAL!

CELEBRATE FAITH, FELLOWSHIP AND HOPE AT THE FESTIVAL

After two exciting days filled with music, laughter, family activities and celebration, Sunday morning at the Alliston Potato Festival offers an opportunity to pause, reflect and rejoice together.

Everyone is invited to the festival's third annual Interdenominational Church Celebration on Sunday, Aug. 9. Presented by the churches of Alliston, this uplifting gathering brings people together to celebrate faith, hope, gratitude, and all that is positive in our lives and community.

The morning begins at 9 a.m. with a free pancake breakfast and coffee. It is a warm and welcoming way to begin the day, share a meal, meet new people and enjoy fellowship before the celebration begins.

At 10 a.m., everyone is invited to gather at the TD Main Stage for the Interdenominational Church Celebration. Representatives from different Alliston churches and denominations will come together to offer an inspirational morning of music, reflection and encouragement.

You do not need to belong to a particular church — or attend church at all — to participate. Everyone is welcome. Come as you are and join neighbours, friends and visitors as we give thanks for the blessings in our lives, celebrate the strength of our community and encourage one another for the days ahead.

During a busy festival weekend, this celebration provides a meaningful moment to slow down and recognize the things that truly connect us: faith, family, friendship, kindness and our shared desire to build a caring community.

Through uplifting music and an inspirational message, the morning will remind us that we do not face life's challenges alone. By gathering together, we can find renewed strength, hope and encouragement while also celebrating the joy and goodness around us.

This event is designed for the entire family. Children, youth, adults and seniors are all invited to share in this positive and welcoming experience.

After two days of festival excitement, let us begin Sunday by rejoicing together, giving thanks and celebrating the faith, hope and community spirit that make Alliston such a special place to call home.

REGISTER BEFORE AUG 1. AND RECEIVE ONE FESTIVAL DAY PASS!

Family fun with four-legged friends at Strutt Your Mutt

The Alliston Potato Festival is for the whole family — including the family dog.

Strutt Your Mutt returns Saturday, Aug. 8, on the Fairgrounds Stage. Sponsored by Pet Grocer, the show gives local dogs an opportunity to take centre stage while their families and festival visitors cheer them on.

Event-day registration begins at 9 a.m., followed by judging at 9:30 a.m. and the show at 10 a.m. The registration fee is $10.

Participants who register before Aug. 1 will receive one festival day pass, which can be picked up at Pet Grocer. Dogs must remain on a leash before, during and after the show.

Registration is simple and can be completed online at AllistonPotatoFest.com. No form downloads or emails are required.

Whether your dog is an experienced performer or simply enjoys meeting new people, Strutt Your Mutt is a fun way to include your family's best friend in the festival weekend.

CELEBRATING THE 52nd
ANNUAL ALLISTON POTATO FESTIVAL!

Popular annual pancake breakfast returning to St. John's United Church

It has become a popular local tradition to attend the pancake breakfast at St. John's United Church in Alliston during the Alliston Potato Festival.

Breakfast is returning to this year's event. There is usually a line-up, so if you want to avoid a wait, come early.

Since the church is right downtown, many people start their day with breakfast, then walk down the street to check out the downtown vendors.

The church has always tried to keep breakfast affordable so that whole families can enjoy the all-you-can-eat potato pancakes.

Part of the proceeds from the event support various local charities, including the hospital and the food bank.

This is a community event, made possible by many volunteers, including youth from the South Simcoe 4-H Club and Banting Memorial High School.

The 51st St. John's United Church pancake breakfast will take place on Saturday, Aug. 8, from 7:30 a.m. to 11 a.m., at the church on Victoria Street in downtown Alliston.

WE'RE GROWING! NEW HOME COMING 2027

CELEBRATING THE 52nd ANNUAL ALLISTON POTATO FESTIVAL!

BIG DREAMS TAKE THE STAGE AT THE 2026 BABY SHOW

Some of the smallest participants at the Alliston Potato Festival will be dreaming big this year! The festival is excited to welcome families back for the 2026 Baby Show on Sunday, Aug. 9, proudly sponsored by Kayla Thompson, Realtor with Coldwell Banker Ronan Realty.

This year's theme – “When I Grow Up I Want to Be...” – gives families an opportunity to get creative and imagine what the future may hold for their little ones.

Will they grow up to be a farmer, firefighter, veterinarian, teacher or doctor? Maybe they will become an artist, athlete, scientist, engineer, musician, chef or business leader. Perhaps their costume will represent something completely unexpected. There is no limit to where imagination can take them!

The Baby Show is open to babies up to 18 months of age. Families are invited to create a costume inspired by this year's theme and bring their little dreamer to the festival for a morning filled with smiles, laughter and memorable moments.

In addition to the themed costume competition, prizes will be awarded in categories including Best Themed Outfit, Chubby Cheeks, Most Unique Hairdo, Brightest Eyes, Best Smile and Best Look-Alike for baby and parent in matching outfits. Boys and girls will compete together rather than in separate divisions, and twins will be registered as separate entrants.

Each costume can be as simple or creative as families would like. The most important part is joining in the fun and celebrating the personalities and potential of the youngest members of our community. It is always a joy to see parents, grandparents, siblings and friends cheering from the audience as each baby takes the stage.

The Baby Show has become a cherished Alliston Potato Festival tradition. For many families, it is their child's first opportunity to participate in the festival – and often the beginning of many years of festival memories.

Baby Show check-in begins at 9 a.m., with the show starting at 10 a.m. Families are encouraged to arrive early to allow enough time to check in and prepare before the event begins. An adult aged 18 or older must accompany each baby into the judging area, and organizers ask family members to remain seated during the judging process.

Advance registration is required. The registration fee is $10 in advance or $15 on the day of the event. Visit AllistonPotatoFest.com to find the Baby Show registration form and enter your baby in this year's event.

“A special thank you goes to Kayla Thompson, Realtor with Coldwell Banker Ronan Realty, for sponsoring the 2026 Baby Show and helping make this family favourite possible,” said Beth Wink, executive director of the Alliston Potato Festival.

“Join us on Sunday, Aug. 9, as Alliston's littlest dreamers take the stage and show everyone what they want to be when they grow up!”

Visit us in our newly renovated showroom for all your automotive needs.

CELEBRATING THE 52nd ANNUAL ALLISTON POTATO FESTIVAL!

FROM ELVIS TO AC/DC: TD MAIN STAGE BRINGS DIVERSE LIVE MUSIC TO ALLISTON POTATO FESTIVAL

The TD Main Stage will be the centre of live music and entertainment throughout the 2026 Alliston Potato Festival. From Friday evening through Sunday afternoon, the stage will feature an exciting mix of hometown performers, emerging artists, established musicians and tribute entertainment.

This year, the festival has focused on showcasing the incredible talent found right here in Alliston and throughout Simcoe County, while also welcoming performers from neighbouring communities. The result is a diverse weekend lineup offering something for almost every musical taste.

Festival favourites and hometown performers include Dorene, Smokey Monaghan, Your New Neighbours and Elvis. They will be joined by an outstanding collection of musicians and bands from Simcoe County and the surrounding area.

Friday evening launches the TD Main Stage weekend with Dorene, Get Real and Bootlegged following the annual Alliston Rotary Potato Festival Parade.

On Saturday morning, the stage will welcome young performers for the Just Sing Competition Finale. The music continues throughout the afternoon and evening with Jonny Country and the Man Made This Town Band, Monday Night Project, the Jay Kipps Band, Smokey Monaghan, Hell N Back AC/DC Tribute and Your New Neighbours.

Sunday begins with an Interdenominational Church Morning Celebration, followed by entertainment from Elvis, The High Road, and Roy Orbison & Friends.

New this year, DJ Socrates will keep the energy going while bands change over. Instead of the music stopping between performances, DJ Socrates will help maintain the festival atmosphere and keep the audience entertained as the next artists prepare to take the stage.

The TD Main Stage is an opportunity to gather with family and friends, discover new performers and support the talented musicians who contribute so much to the region's entertainment community. Whether you enjoy country, rock, classic hits, tribute performances or discovering new local music, there will be something waiting for you.

This is a weekend of live entertainment you will not want to miss. Visit AllistonPotatoFest.com for the complete TD Main Stage schedule and start planning your festival weekend.

LIGHTS DOWN, MUSIC OFF: SENSORY-FRIENDLY MIDWAY HOUR RETURNS

For the second year, the Alliston Potato Festival is pleased to provide a designated Quiet Space and Sensory-Friendly Midway Hour.

"These features are part of our commitment to creating an inclusive and welcoming festival where visitors of all ages and abilities can enjoy the celebration comfortably," said Beth Wink, Alliston Potato Festival executive director.

"We understand that the excitement of a busy festival — including crowds, music, bright lights and unfamiliar sounds — can sometimes feel overwhelming. These accommodations give guests an opportunity to enjoy a calmer midway experience or step away from the activity when they need a break."

On Sunday, Aug. 9, from 11 a.m. to noon, Albion Amusements will open the midway for a Sensory-Friendly Hour, proudly sponsored by Head Hy. During this time, music will be turned off and flashing or display lights will be reduced or turned off wherever it is safe to do so. Lights required for the safe operation of the rides will remain on.

Ride operators may also need to make essential safety announcements at the start and end of each ride. However, the overall midway environment will be quieter and calmer than during regular operating hours. Everyone is welcome to attend during the Sensory-Friendly Hour, with regular midway operations beginning at noon.

The designated Quiet Space will also return for the entire festival weekend. Located in a peaceful shed on the fairgrounds, it offers a quieter place where visitors can pause, regroup and take a break from the sights and sounds of the festival.

While the space is not completely sound-proof, noise-reducing headphones will be available to create a more comfortable experience.

Visitors who would like to use the Quiet Space can ask for directions at the front gate near the Alliston Potato Festival hut. Festival volunteers will be happy to guide you to its location.

Guests are welcome to use these accommodations whenever they are needed. Sometimes taking a short break can help you return to the festival feeling more comfortable and ready to enjoy the rest of the day.

"Thank you to Head Hy for supporting these accessibility initiatives and helping us create a festival where everyone feels welcome," said Wink.

Saddle Up for the Tom Bishop Wild West Show

The Tom Bishop Wild West Show will perform at the Alliston Potato Festival on Saturday, August 8. Three shows are scheduled for noon, 2 p.m. and 4 p.m. at the fairgrounds.

The family show features horsemanship, trick riding, trick roping and whip demonstrations. Tom Bishop and his trained horses will demonstrate the coordination, precision and trust involved in western performance.

Bishop comes from a family with a long history in Canadian western entertainment. Through 4B Ranch Productions, the family has performed at fairs, festivals and special events, as well as contributing to film, television, print and stage productions.

Between shows, visitors may also have an opportunity to meet Bishop and one of his horses and learn more about the training involved. All three performances are included with festival admission. Visitors are encouraged to arrive early to find a good viewing spot.

CELEBRATING THE 52nd ANNUAL ALLISTON POTATO FESTIVAL!

SHUFFLE UP AND DEAL: ANNUAL DOMINO'S TEXAS HOLD'em TOURNAMENT SET FOR FRIDAY

Kick off the Alliston Potato Festival on Friday, Aug. 7, with an electrifying night of poker at the Alliston Curling Club. Whether you're a seasoned card shark or just looking for a fun night out, this tournament promises excitement, strategy, and plenty of friendly competition.

Doors open at 6 p.m., with registration starting promptly at 6:30 p.m. The cards will be flying as the tournament officially begins at 7 p.m. sharp — so be sure to arrive early and claim your seat.

This year's event takes place in the curling club's cozy lounge, creating the perfect atmosphere to focus on your poker face and make new friends.

Entry is just $40, which gets you 2,000 tournament chips to play with. Feeling bold? Optional re-buys are available for the first three levels at $20 each, plus add-ons of $20 for 2,000 chips or $40 for 5,000 chips to boost your stack.

Please note, cash is required at registration — there is no debit machine on site. The curling club's bar will be open for refreshments to keep you energized, and during a break, enjoy some delicious Domino's pizza served fresh to fuel your game.

Make it a festival night — drop the family off at the parade and settle in for a thrilling evening of cards, camaraderie, and good times.

Get ready to raise the stakes, and may the best player win!

New date and location set for Recycled Teenagers Classic Car and Truck Show

The Recycled Teenagers Classic Car and Truck Show returns to the Alliston Potato Festival with a new day and location for 2026.

Previously held on Saturday, the show will now take place on Sunday, Aug. 9, from 8 a.m. to 3 p.m. at the Alliston Fairgrounds, 130 Church Street South.

The show will feature classic cars, vintage trucks, custom vehicles, hot rods and restored favourites from across the region. Visitors can meet vehicle owners and learn about the work involved in restoring and maintaining their vehicles.

NEW DAY AND LOCATION
FOR 2026
SHOW!

Vehicle owners can register in advance for $10 or at the gate for $20. Gate registration includes festival admission for two people.

The first 150 registered vehicles will receive a commemorative dash plaque and a goodie bag.

The registration form is available at AllistonPotatoFest.com. For more information, contact Rick Heidman at 416-970-5622.

Festival visitors can also enjoy the other activities taking place throughout the fairgrounds on Sunday.

The regions only YPAD certified dance studio.
